markers, and a basic palette of acrylic paints are enough to begin. Many artists favor RAL 8002 Signal Brown—its warm, earthy tone adds depth without overwhelming the composition. Choosing the right paint early on influences how shadows and highlights will later interact with the letterforms. Outline the base shape. Lightly draw a sans-serif capital letter, then trace a parallel outline $\frac{1}{4}$ inch outward to create the “bubble” border. Round the corners. Soften every intersection with a small circular motion, ensuring the letter retains a soft, inflatable feel. Divide the interior. Sketch subtle curves inside the bubble to suggest where light will hit and where shadows will settle.
