USAA has announced that the 2025 direct deposit timetable will shift several paydays later in the year, giving members a clearer view of when funds will appear in their accounts. This adjustment is intended to reduce the frequency of mid-month cash gaps that some members have reported. The updated timeline also reflects a modest increase in the average deposit amount, which could help offset inflation-driven expenses. Among the most noticeable changes is the postponement of the mid-October deposit, moving it to early November. While this provides a longer window for preparing automatic bill payments, it also means a brief delay in accessing those funds. Conversely, the November disbursement includes
