For example, a family looking to add an accessory dwelling unit can instantly filter for parcels in R-2 zones that allow secondary units, avoiding weeks of phone calls to the planning. The portal incorporates a drop-down menu where users select desired zoning categories, then automatically narrows the MLS listings to those that match. Each listing includes a thumbnail of the zoning map, a link to the full GIS report, and an "export to PDF" button for offline review. The interface also supports a draw tool, letting users sketch a custom area on the map and retrieve every property inside that shape. Setback overlays: Visual cues show required distances from property lines for structures, gardens, or fences. Variance markers: Any approved variances appear as a small "V" icon on the parcel, linked to the official decision documents. Most agents think the hard part of a
