For teachers, administrators, and support staff in the Los Angeles Unified School District, understanding when salary hikes land on a paycheck—and what accompanying benefits accompany those raises—is essential for personal budgeting and career planning. This guide breaks down the typical timeline, the mechanics behind the increase, and the practical implications for everyday district employees. Salary increases in LAUSD are usually tied to the district's fiscal calendar. After a collective bargaining agreement (CBA) is ratified, the raise often becomes effective on July 1, aligning with the start of the new fiscal year. Employees then see the higher rate reflected in the first regular pay period that begins after that date—commonly the second or third bi-weekly cycle, depending on payroll processing. Because LAUSD runs on a bi-weekly schedule, the exact day varies. For instance, if July 1 falls on a Monday, the raise might appear in the pay period covering July 2–15, making the July 15 paycheck the first to show the new rate. Payroll notices are typically sent out a week in advance, giving staff time to adjust withholding and budgeting plans. LAUSD's salary schedule follows a step-scale model. Each "step" represents a defined amount of experience or service time, and a contract upgrade may add a flat dollar amount, a percentage bump, or both. The most common scenario is a 2–3 % base salary increase across all steps, with additional step-advancement money for employees who have reached the next service tier.
